Frederick Eisenbud
Law Office
of Frederick Eisenbud

Fred Eisenbud founded and was Chief of the Environmental Crime Unit at the Suffolk County District Attorney's Office, and was counsel to the Suffolk County Board of Health. He served many times as chair of the Environmental Law Committee of the Suffolk County Bar Association, taught Environmental Law at Touro Law School, and lectures frequently on environmental law topics. At HIA-LI, Fred has served as a Director since 1995, was Co-Chair of its Environmental Committee for ten years, and now is the Board's liaison to that Committee. The attorneys at the Law Office of Frederick Eisenbud in Commack offer a unique blend of experience and perspective that allows you to receive the skilled representation offered by Manhattan law firms without Manhattan prices. They are ready to work with you or your attorney in all aspects of environmental law and litigation: administrative, civil, or criminal.

Tim Harris has worked for over 21 years with National Grid and its legacy companies. He currently works in Economic Development for the Eastern Suffolk County area. Prior to this position, Tim worked in Research and Development, was a Major Account Executive to State and Federal Government organizations, and spent 13 years in Electric Service in various management positions. In his current role, Tim works closely with strategic state and local Economic Development organizations including Empire State Development Corporation, Suffolk County, and local IDA's. As a representative of LIPA and National Grid, he works to attract and retain customers to the region for the benefit of all Long Islanders. His efforts with these programs have helped many Long Island companies save significant dollars on gas and electric costs and reduced their overall carbon footprint.
